

Topic

This week the children have continued our new topic Chocolate. The children have been learning about the history of chocolate this week. The children worked together to make a time line of chocolate history and then collected information for their own fact file. The children then focused on the Aztec people. They created their own sunstone and used google earth to explore and label maps of Mexico and Spain. Next week the children will be looking at nutritional information on different chocolate wrappers.

Numeracy

This week in Numeracy the children have continued to focus on Multiplication and Division. The children have been working to identify odd and even numbers and to double and halve numbers.

Literacy

This week in Literacy the children have completed our focus on the Twits. The children have been using the different sentence types to explain about the Twits themselves and then to retell one of the scenes from the story. Next week the children will start to focus on a new book. We will be reading Charlie and the Chocolate Factory by Roald Dahl.
