

Our week in Bumblebees 09.10.26

This week Bumblebees have been enjoying lots of opportunities to join in with activities that are shared with adults and other children. Being able to share a space or activity with someone else is a very important part of building communication. It works best when children feel safe and have started to build relationships with the adults around them. and when the activities are engaging for them. Here are some lovely pictures of Bumblebees enjoying doing something with or alongside somebody else, this week.
